GoodHaven 2.0

In December 2019, Larry Pitkowsky became majority controlling partner and sole portfolio manager of GoodHaven Capital Management. “We had strayed from our long history of primarily focusing on “good businesses” and true special situations – this hurt, the stuff “in the middle” kills you. Value investing is consistent with owning quality companies – value and growth are connected not distinct. The key is having a margin of safety not just owning the statistically cheapest securities. The 2020 market turmoil presented an opportunity to accelerate a process recently underway to upgrade the portfolio – and we did.”

– Larry Pitkowsky

Performance Disclaimers:

Past performance is not indicative of future results and investors can lose money.

The Separate Account Portfolios managed by GoodHaven are concentrated and non-diversified, which means that the performance of a limited number of investments may lead to significant volatility in the value of an account we manage. All returns are expressed in U.S. Dollars and performance information is not audited. Returns are presented net of management fees and include the reinvestment of all dividends and income unless otherwise noted. In addition, fees charged may be similar to or different than fees charged by other investment managers or funds. Additional information regarding policies for calculating and reporting returns is available upon request. Reported returns are composited of all managed accounts using Advent Software’s APX portfolio management software, but we do not represent them to be GIPS compliant. Specific account performance may vary significantly from our composite due to a number of factors including, but not limited to, the inception date of the account, the securities owned, the percentage of each security in the portfolio, tax strategies, and the restrictions or actions, if any, directed by the client. We believe our consolidated composite of all managed accounts is a fair and accurate representation of our Separate Account program’s performance.

Separate account composite performance (net of fees) for the last year (12/31/24-12/31/25) was an increase of approximately 8.0%; five-year (12/31/20-12/31/25) was an increase of approximately 17.5% annualized (net of fees); ten-year (12/31/15-12/31/25) was an increase of approximately 12.5% annualized (net of fees).

GoodHaven’s strategies do not follow or attempt to mimic any particular index and comparisons of specific index returns to those of our portfolios may be of limited utility as we invest in a variety of market capitalizations, a variety of security types, and have, at times, held significant liquidity in accounts.
